OPEN HOUSE Galway 2009

Galway's best examples of engaging architectural design will be open to the public when the inaugural Open House Galway architectural festival takes place from the 16th – 18th October 2009. The event, in partnership with the Irish Architecture Foundation, will feature buildings of quality design in the City and its environs including private dwellings, incorporating sustainable materials and innovative design, as well as commercial, public and educational buildings. Fiona Donovan, Galway Healthy Cities Coordinator explains that "the Healthy Cities project is delighted to be involved with this event as it highlights and supports healthy urban planning in the city which is crucial for people's health."

All Open House events are free of charge and only a small number will require pre-booking. A full programme of events, as well as pre-booking facilities, are available at: www.openhousegalway.ie

Smarter Travel in Galway City

Census figures for Galway City illustrate that the total percentage of people travelling to work or education by bike is 4.6% and 8.6% by bus. In comparison 52.2% of the population travel by car either as a driver (36.5%) or passenger (15.7%). To encourage and promote a significant increase in more sustainable methods of travel in Galway, Galway Transportation Unit seeks viewpoints/ideas/suggestions from groups or individuals on what would encourage and support their organisation, co-workers, classmates, community group, club members etc. to choose to walk, cycle or take the bus more frequently in Galway. All viewpoints received will input to the Galway application process for the National Smarter Travel Areas Competition, for which the Department of Transport has allocated a budget of €50 million.

All submissions, which can be very detailed or simply a one line idea can be forwarded to Galway Transportation Unit at gtu@galwaycity.ie or posted to Galway Transportation Unit, Galway City Council, City Hall, College Road, Galway. The deadline for receipt of your ideas/suggestions is Friday October 2, 2009 at 1.00pm. Further information can be obtained by contacting Galway Transportation Unit at: (091) 894328.

Healthy Stadia Conference

Galway City has been involved in a pilot programme over the past twelve months to develop stadia as places where staff, fans and visitors can have a positive and healthy experience. Linking with stadia in Latvia, Spain and Finland, stadia in Galway undertook health initiatives such as provision of a healthy food option; installation of bike racks; promotion of active travel; use of players to promote a healthy lifestyle and the organisation of a development league to encourage increased participation.

Their experience cumulated at the international European Healthy Stadia conference which took place in Liverpool last week. Ireland had representatives from Galway United FC, Salthill Devon FC, Mervue United and Galway Bay Sailing Club. In attendance also was from Minister Aine Brady, TD and Bill Enright, Operations Manager for the new Aviva Stadium. Pete Kelly, Salthill Devon FC, who presented to the 250 delegates, explained that "Sports stadia, whether they be national stadiums or arenas staging international events or local facilities like Drom Soccer Park in Galway, offer an outstanding vehicle for promoting healthy lifestyles. The Healthy Stadia conference offered a great insight into how a combination of venues with a common objective can make a difference. Capturing the hearts and minds of the younger generation is key to creating a healthier Ireland."
