Reflection: In these dark and dreary days of November, as the church year is coming to a close, this is a time for remembering the dead. It might be worth considering and praying for people who sacrificed themselves for us or for others; who gave up their own personal dreams and ambitions to look after a sick parent or relative, who stayed at home on the farm or in the family business so that another could go away to college or to work. These might seem to be small sacrifices, but in our minds and hearts they remain a sure and solid witness to the grace of God in the soul of that person. - Fr. J P Sheridan.

Readings this weekend: These final Sundays of the year highlight the resurrection of the dead and the life of the world to come.

Congratulations to Mary Flaherty (Carrowkeel and Dublin) who married Robert Coen last Saturday in St Brendan Cathedral, Loughrea.

A thought: To be yourself in a world that tries, night and day, to make you just like everybody else, is to fight the greatest battle there ever is to fight and never stop fighting. - EE Cummings.

Sunday 20th November 2016 marks 'World Day of Remembrance for Road Traffic Victims', this gives us an opportunity to remember those who have died on our roads and the families, friends and communities who have been devastated by their loss and also we remember those who have survived with life altering injuries. For thousands of families around the country, their lives are forever changed as a result of a collision. At the ceremony family members will have an opportunity to say a poem or prayer to remember their lost loved one, a candle ceremony will also take place. Others in attendance on the day will include representatives from the Road Safety Authority, An Garda Síochána, Emergency Services and road safety support organisations & local clergy. A light lunch will also be served after the ceremony.

Salthill Hotel, Salthill, Galway Sunday, 20th November 2016 2pm to 3pm
